The Role of Congress in International Crises

Panel Discussion, Free Admission
Thursday, June 5, at 7 p.m., William G. McGowan Theater
Presented in partnership with the U.S. Association of Former Members of Congress

The Constitution, as part of its checks and balances, assigns Congress the power to declare war and the President to oversee the conduct and the direction of the war. A panel moderated by Clinton White House Press Secretary Mike McCurry, and including former Speaker of the House Dennis Hastert, former Members of Congress Chris Shays and John Tanner, and author and investigative journalist Bob Woodward, will examine how this division of powers and responsibilities has been interpreted in the past, how military action was taken without congressional authorization, and how the legislative branch plays a significant role when our nation is faced by international crisis.

The Foundation for the National Archives is proud to sponsor public programs through the generous support of the William G. McGowan Charitable Fund, Inc. Visit us at archivesfoundation.org.

START

Fall 2014 INTERNSHIPS

The National Consortium for the Study of Terrorism and Responses to Terrorism (START) is a research center, based at the University of Maryland, committed to the scientific study of the causes and human consequences of terrorism in the United States and around the world as well as related topics. START experts apply a range of research methods to the exploration of these questions in order to deliver findings based on the best available open-source evidence and data. At the heart of START’s work are the principles that the research it is conducting must be both scientifically rigorous and directly relevant to homeland security professionals. START is a Center of Excellence supported by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security and also receives funding and support from a variety of Federal agencies, private foundations, and universities.

The Internship Program
START offers unpaid internship experiences on many of its large-scale research projects, including START’s flagship research project, the Global Terrorism Database, with the center’s Special Projects Division as well as our HQ support teams such as Communications and Education. Throughout the course of their internship, participants are exposed to the most up-to-date theories, methods and information relating to the study of terrorism. They are versed in critical questions being tackled by homeland security practitioners, policy makers and researchers, and they are mentored in a successful, professional environment. The internship program is open to all undergraduate and graduate students (as well as some recent graduates) in any related discipline from any institution. Interns typically work onsite at START headquarters and often receive academic credit for their participation. Each internship lasts for one semester (or summer term). Participants work at least 10 hours/week during the fall and spring semesters and 20 hours/week during the summer. Interns also participate in a program of enrichment and career development activities and receive mentoring from START researchers and staff.

Why choose an internship at START?
• Experience working with a large team of dynamic and experienced researchers.
• Exposure to cutting edge theories and methods.
• Deepen your understanding of current issues in terrorism and homeland security.
• Work on projects of immediate interest to the practitioner and policy community.
• Hone and develop a range of transferable skills attractive to future employers.
• Opportunity to work with and meet other students and researchers with similar interests.
• Enrichment activities offering wide opportunities for learning and personal growth.
• Mentorship from START staff and researchers in a successful professional environment.
• Internships can be undertaken for academic credit.

General requirements
Applicants for all internships must:
• Have a good academic record.
• Demonstrate an interest in the subject matter.
• Be able to complete their internship work hours at the location listed in the description.
• Agree to attend orientation and training.
• Submit an application by the deadline, all application packets must include:
  - A complete application for the correct semester,
  - One page resume,
  - Cover letter,
  - Writing sample,
  - Unofficial transcripts.
Each project may have additional requirements, including minimum credit hours, preferred majors and compulsory meeting times. For specific requirements and information visit: www.start.umd.edu.
